Inside the club, Susan's night takes an unexpected turn when one of her new friends gets noticed by a group of Ajax football players. The girls get invited to the VIP section, where the Champagne is flowing. The football players are already engaged in the famous St. Tropez Champagne-spraying ritual, and at their table bottles are constantly popping and foam is raining down. The atmosphere is amazing. Caught up in the excitement, Susan is handed a glow-in-the-dark Dom Pérignon bottle by one of the Ajax players. The group hypes her up, chanting for her to spray the bottle. With adrenaline rushing through her veins and peer pressure mounting, she hesitates but eventually gives in.

As Susan is trying to open the bottle, Lila comes over to the table. She has spotted the Ajax players, and wants to take a selfie with them. This would be perfect for her feed, contributing to her exclusive and luxury brand. She positions herself next to the group with her phone in hand, ensuring her hair is flawless and her Hermès bag is prominently displayed in the frame. Susan notices that Lila has joined the group and sees it as an opportunity to take some sweet revenge for their interaction earlier that evening. She shakes the bottle, removes the foil, turns towards Lila... and BOOM! The cork shoots into the air, and the Champagne sprays on Lila. The Ajax players are cheering and laughing, but Lila is horrified. She is completely drenched in Champagne, and the golden liquid is dripping from her rented Hermès bag. The varnish is ruined, and the bag is beyond repair.

Lila is furious. She is humiliated and her expensive bag is destroyed. The next day, when she returns the bag, Lila is charged with an €8000 bill from Couture Closet Swap. Lila takes legal action against Susan, demanding full compensation for the damage. Neither Lila nor Susan is insured.
